DESCRIPTION

Sex: Male

Race: White

Age: Estimated to be around 50 years old

Remarks: The subject wore a light-colored baseball cap, a light-colored button-down shirt with darker-colored vertical stripes, blue jeans, gloves, and a mask. The mask may have been clear with flesh-colored foundation makeup covering it. The subject also wore sunglasses and spoke with a deep voice. No accent was noted. Note: This case is also believed to be connected to the alleged robbery of Telco Federal Credit Union on December 29, 2014, in Cornelius, North Carolina.

Vehicle Information: The subject's vehicle was described as a silver Chrysler PT Cruiser with a dark-colored sunroof, bearing Maryland tag 4FYF79.

Weapon Used: The subject was armed with a handgun and also threatened a bomb, producing a bag with what looked like two tubes wrapped with duct tape and wires protruding from the tubes.

CAUTION

On September 18, 2014, the Hebron Savings Bank, located at 303 Main Street, Sharptown, Maryland 21861, was allegedly robbed by an unidentified subject. The subject entered the bank through the front door, approached a teller, and pointed a handgun at the teller demanding access behind the teller area. Once the subject gained access to the area, he demanded money from the vault to be placed in a shopping bag that the subject brought with him. The subject also told the teller that he had a bomb and displayed a bomb-like device that he carried with him in a bag. After receiving the money, the subject exited through the front door and fled the area in a vehicle.
